Blue Raincoat Presents Theatre on the Rampage

Blue Raincoat Theatre Company continue with their acclaimed catalogue of travels through the realms of the absurd. The Sligo based ensemble return to The Town Hall Theatre with their production of Rhinoceros by Eugene Ionesco.

Blue Raincoat has enjoyed massive popularity at the Town Hall in recent years, with a series of new adaptations on the works of Flann O'Brien, The Third Policeman and At Swim-Two-Birds, and with two other works by Ionesco The Chairs and The Bald Soprano.

Rhinoceros ranks clearly among Ionesco's seminal works. It concerns the citizens of a small town who – bar one tardy and disaffected drop-out - are bizarrely transformed over the course of the play into a herd of rampaging pachyderms. A searing and bleakly funny study on the human nature, Rhinoceros is amongst the most striking and enduring artistic commentaries on social frailty and group hysteria from the 20th century.
