Did you know?

NUI Galway has academic exchange and collaborations with 30 institutions throughout China and Hong Kong.

I chose NUI Galway because of its unique Centre for Disability Law and Policy (CDLP). When I was working on disability rights in China, most reports and articles we read could be traced back to the CDLP! Only a few universities in the world have specialised programmes on disability law, and the CDLP has an extraordinary history of law reform advocacy worldwide.

As a research student, I appreciated the support from the university from day one. The induction was very clear and informative, and there were also a series of events about funding and other academic supports afterwards.

Irish culture is friendly, Galway is tiny and lovely.

My blog post for second semester can be reached at https://bochen.quora.com/Blog-post-for-the-second-semester?rid=uEZN
