CONNECT with Children’s Studies

This programme draws on the expertise from a wide range of areas including the Creative Arts, Literature, Sociology, Psychology and Human Rights. It provides students with the opportunity to examine the socio-cultural construction of childhood and the legal and policy frameworks surrounding children’s lives. The programme combines a strong theoretical and academic focus with an applied and practical orientation and has both a historical and a contemporary perspective.

The BA with Children’s Studies in NUI Galway is the only programme currently on offer in Ireland or the UK that focuses on childhood from an interdisciplinary perspective, enabling students to take two traditional arts subjects alongside Children’s Studies to degree level. The third year placement experience allows students to gain practical experience in the specialist area of Children’s Studies. The learning outcomes of this programme include a theoretical and practical understanding of the issues relevant to the study of children and children’s lives; competence in writing and communication skills; knowledge of social and community settings that have relevance to children’s lives; research skills relevant to the study of children.

Module Coordinator: Kate Harvey

Module Description

This module explores the importance of literature in children’s lives. Students will examine and discuss books and other cultural products aimed at children in Ireland through a range of media, including novels, picturebooks, comics, film, television, and digital media. Students will explore representations of children and childhood in Irish culture, with a particular emphasis on gender, class, age, and religion. Other topics covered include uses of Irish myth and folklore in modern children’s fiction; national identity; Irish history in children’s fiction; visual narrative; the place of the Irish language; and contemporary children’s publishing and broadcasting. This module also provides students with a foundation in academic research and writing skills.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this module students should be able to:

- Engage critically with the key concepts of children’s literary and cultural studies.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the evolving role of literature, film, and digital media within children’s culture in Ireland.
- Critically discuss the impact of children’s literature and culture on its target audience.
- Develop critical writing and research skills relevant to the study of Arts and Humanities at third level.
- Apply the skills learned to other areas of children’s studies.

Assessment

Three academic writing exercises leading to final essay.

Module Coordinator: Dr Colette Kelly

Module Description

The module provides students with an understanding of children's health, health behaviours, and theories about health. The module reviews existing national and international policies and programmes addressing children's health and children's access and interaction with the health services. The module takes an interdisciplinary approach to children's health and is informed by the World Health Organisation’s definition of health (WHO, 1984), as well as Dahlgren and Whitehead's (1991) Social Model of Health.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this module students will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of various definitions of health.
- Discuss the Social Model of Health and how it is used as a framework for the understanding of health and health inequalities.
- Describe the various aspects of children’s health.

Assessment

This module is assessed by an essay.

Module Coordinator: Michal Molcho

Module Description

This module aims to provide students with an understanding of children's lives within their social contexts. The contexts that are examined in this module include the family, pre-school settings, schools and peer relationships. The module will also examine research with children and ethical concerns relevant to working with children.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this module students will be able to:

- Understand the different contexts in which children operate;
- Understand the importance of the different contexts and the role they play in child development;
- Apply theories to the service learning experience.

Assessment

As part of this module, students are required to complete 10 hours of service learning in the community, working with children. To fully incorporate the service learning in the class work, students are required to submit learning journals and reflective sessions will be used to discuss the service learning and how it links to the theories discussed in class.

- Children First Training (10%)
- Weekly Reflection Journals (30%)
- Final Essay (60%)

Module Description

This module aims to examine the conception of 'childhood' as depicted in Irish-language texts, including texts from Old and Middle-Irish as well as contemporary literary texts. It also includes the study of Irish language children's literature. It will be delivered through English by members of Roinn na Gaeilge, School of Languages, Literatures and Cultures.

Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this module students will be able to:

- Compare and contrast the representations of childhood in Irish-language literary texts from early Irish through to the modern day.

- Discuss the importance of the National School System (1831) in relation to the Irish language.

- Give an account of traditional Irish-language games for children.

- Conduct independent research on the archival material from the School's Folklore Collection available online at www.duchas.ie.

- Give an account of the prominent themes and motifs in works of fiction for children in the writings of Eilίs Dillon and Cathal Ó Sάndair.

- Describe the importance attributed to the child in the Irish-language revival movement.

Module Description
This module will introduce fundamental structures and principles of education with the aim of broadening students’ ideas and knowledge about education systems and policy. Students will be shown a diversity of approaches by highlighting European and international developments which involve an emphasis on creative pedagogical thinking and they will analyse how Ireland fits into this framework. There will also be an examination of the socio-cultural aims and requirements of education focusing on pedagogy but also addressing key areas of policy and practice as they relate to social justice, for example, social inclusion, race and ethnicity, gender and belief systems.

Learning Outcomes
Upon successful completion of this module students will be able to:

- Acquire knowledge of the variety of educational approaches which exist.
- Recognise the need for diversity of educational provision.
- Evaluate the influence of context and culture on education systems.
- Demonstrate critical thinking about both positives and negatives of various educational pedagogies.
- Reflect on how their own education system was formed, where it is now and where it may go in the future.
- Demonstrate an overall understanding of the importance of considering the goals of education.

Module Description

The overall objective of this course is to introduce students to key concepts in the study of well-being and human strengths, and particular applications that are relevant within the clinical, educational, and organisational domains.

As a discipline psychology has offered perspectives on well-being for over a century. In this module students are introduced to the emergence of positive psychology as a distinctive field of study and practice.

The module affords students the opportunity to study and discuss a number of topic areas relevant to the study of well-being and human strengths, including positive emotional states, positive traits, and positive institutions.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this module students should be able to:

- Describe the emergence of positive psychology as a distinctive discipline and discuss its relationship to other sub-disciplines within psychology.
- Be able to distinguish hedonic and eudaimonic approaches to studying well-being
- Discuss the role of positive states, traits, and institutions in well-being.
- Synthesise multiple perspectives on well-being
- Critically evaluate interventions designed to enhance well-being

Module Coordinator: Dr Kate Harvey

Module Description

This module explores recent trends in fiction aimed at the ‘young adult’ (YA) market. Students will read and discuss a range of popular YA novels from a variety of genres; authors include Malorie Blackman, Sarah Crossan, Patrick Ness, and Louise O’Neill. Definitions of categories such as ‘children’s books’, ‘teen fiction’, and ‘young adult literature’ will be interrogated, as will the related phenomenon of ‘crossover fiction’. Students will explore why particular subjects and genres have proven more popular with young readers than others, and examine recurring themes such as identity formation, transitions, self-image and bodily autonomy, disillusionment with authority, and stereotypical adolescent issues (e.g. bullying, substance abuse, sexual awakening, depression).

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this module the learner will be able to:

- Identify and define prominent genres of young adult literature.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the evolving role of literature within adolescent culture.
- Interpret key concepts and themes in novels aimed at young adults.
- Critically engage with current academic research on young adult literature.
- Connect the novels discussed to other areas of children’s studies.
- Develop critical writing and research skills relevant to the study of Arts and Humanities at third level.

Assessment

- Essay 100%
Module Coordinator: Dr Michal Molcho

Module Description

Transition has been defined as the process of changing from one state or condition to another and a period of such change (Oxford English Dictionary, 2012). This module will explore transitions that occur in children and adolescents lives, including 'Vertical transitions’, described as ‘developmental and predictable’ and include moving on from one setting to another at the appropriate stage in education/life; NS ‘Horizontal transition’, described as the movement between activities during the course of a normal day. The module will also explore transitions that result from migration, changes in the family structure, and bereavement.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this module the learner will be able to:

- Discern between predictable and unpredictable transitions.
- Appreciate the complexity of emotional transition.
- Prepare a support plan to assist children with transitions.
- Assess the support needs of children with special needs as they go through periods of change.

Module Description

This course shall provide an overview of children’s rights in international law. It will look at the International Convention on the Rights of the Child and its Additional Protocols. During the course, students will debate concepts of childhood and the perception of children and child rights in international law. Country reports will serve to illustrate challenges and predominant obstacles in the international law of the child. The course will cover critical issues like child labour, children in armed conflict and the best interest principle.

Learning Outcomes

At the end of this module students shall be able to recognise legally relevant problems regarding children in the context of international human rights law. That includes:

- Development of a case study
- Comprehension of the legal framework
- Understanding of the arguments underpinning policy discussions
- Critical evaluation of empowerment mechanisms

Assessment

- This module is assessed by continuous assessment (details TBC)
Module Coordinator: Marianne Ní Chinnéide

Module Description

This module provides a broad introduction to the vibrant and growing field of Theatre for Children and Young People in Ireland. The course will examine the subject in terms of its history, practice and function, placing particular emphasis on the three key areas which ground this work: theatre (form), young people (children) and the audience. The course is taught through a combination of lectures, discussion, group work and practical theatrical experimentation. It will be a co-constructed experience to allow students to meet their own interests and strengths. The module will conclude with group work in the form of a work-shopped performance of a ‘Tiny Show’ (Branar 2015) designed and devised by the students' themselves. This performance work will be experimental in nature and will be framed by both the theme of Baboró International Arts Festival for Children (17th-23rd October), and by the students’ engagement with particular performances and theatre artists presenting at this festival. Fundamentally, this module will enable students to learn about the distinctiveness and purposes of children’s theatre, and will provide them with a practical and theoretical understanding to allow them to critically examine it in form and function.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this module students will be able to:

- Develop knowledge of children’s theatre, its history and development.
- Recognise and develop an appreciation of theatre for children and young people.
- Develop an understanding of a range of theatre techniques and their application in a children’s theatre context.
- Develop professional work for children and young people.
- Learn how to engage aesthetically with and understand children’s theatre through engagement with theatre artists and performances at Baboró.
- Become critically aware of the role of theatre for young audiences in society.
• Locate and contextualise theatre for young audiences within a wider socio-cultural and educational context.

Students are required to complete a minimum of 200 hours of work placement (approx. twenty hours per week) with an approved organisation. The objective of the work placement experience is for students to be involved in, and learn from, the work that is carried out by the organisation. In order for the experience to be successful for both the student and the organisation, the organisation is expected to assign a supervisor for the student. Clear objectives and learning goals should be set with the student at the start of the placement. These objectives will be developed, signed by the student and the supervisor and will be sent to the course director.

Additional Information

Attendance

Regular attendance is mandatory for all modules. If for any reason you are unable to attend a lecture, please email the lecturer of the relevant module as soon as possible to explain your absence.

Additionally, you need to complete the on-line medical information form that is on the website below. Once you have completed the form please upload a copy of the supporting documentation (e.g. medical cert) and click on submit. This goes onto an internal database. College Office will then forward the information to your subject coordinators.

Assessment

Further information regarding assessment methods and deadlines will be made available by the lecturer of each individual course. If you are not entirely clear on any aspect of the assessment method, please contact the relevant lecturer for clarification.

If, for reasons of illness or personal circumstances, you are unable to submit an assignment on time, please contact the relevant lecturer prior to the deadline for submission. Late submissions will be subject to a penalty unless an extension has been granted and/or a valid medical certificate is produced.

Extensions and Late Submission Penalties

If you need to request an extension of a submission date, you must make that request to your module tutor/lecturer in advance of the date, where possible. The granting of an extension in retrospect can occur only in exceptional circumstances. We strive to be as flexible as possible with students who have legitimate reasons for late submissions, however, evidence (i.e. a medical certificate) will be required for an extension to be granted. What this means is that if you anticipate not making a deadline due to illness or a family upheaval you MUST ask your module tutor/lecturer for an extension in advance of the deadline.

If you do not request an extension and just submit an assignment late, marks will be deducted at a rate of 2% per day for 5 days after which the assignment will be marked on a pass/fail basis up to a maximum of 14 days in total (includes Saturdays and Sundays). As such, 1-5 days late, reduction of 2% per day (or part of) / 6-14 days late, marked on a pass/fail basis. After this 14 day period the assignment will no longer be eligible for submission and an alternative assignment will have to be completed. Alternative assignments will normally carry a similar timeframe to the original assignment, but will be capped at 40% (i.e. the maximum mark attainable will be 40%). Alternative assignments are subject to the same late penalties as the original.
assignment. As noted previously, all modules must be passed to successfully complete a year.

Garda Vetting
Garda Vetting (GV) is a requirement of admission and continued eligibility for this course. As such, GV forms should be returned promptly, since delays in returning GV forms may render you ineligible to continue attending this course. Please visit the following webpage for full details on the Garda vetting process: http://www.nuigalway.ie/postgrad-admissions/garda-vetting/

If you take a break from your studies, upon your return you should ensure that your GV will not expire before you complete this course. If it does you will need to apply again for GV for any subsequent years required for you to complete your studies.

Plagiarism
Plagiarism is defined by the NUI Galway Plagiarism Code of Practice as “the act of copying, including or directly quoting from, the work of another without adequate acknowledgement” and is a serious offence. The University guidelines state that “[t]he submission of plagiarised materials for assessment purposes is fraudulent and all suspected cases will be investigated and dealt with appropriately by the University following the procedures outlined here and with reference to the Disciplinary Code.” The full Plagiarism Code of Practice is reproduced as Appendix A of this booklet.

Students should familiarise themselves with the basics of academic referencing in order to ensure that they are not in breach of the Plagiarism Code of Practice. A selection of online resources for students on writing, referencing, and avoiding plagiarism can be found at http://www.nuigalway.ie/wrap

Student Communications
There are four avenues of communication between staff and students:

1. NUI Galway E-mail
   All students will receive an NUI Galway e-mail address following registration with computer services. This is the only address used by University services (e.g. Examinations, Admissions, Fees Office) and Discipline administrative and academic staff to communicate with students. For reasons of security, privacy and continuity of contact only your NUI, Galway email address will be used. Other addresses (yahoo, hotmail, etc.) will not be used. Therefore, it is essential that students check their NUI, Galway account on a regular basis. Please note that the account should also be maintained by cleaning the different e-mail folders, as their capacity is limited.

2. Blackboard
The Discipline also uses the 'Blackboard' virtual learning environment for communication purposes. Course and module specific notices will be posted in the announcements section, course documents, and assignment details in the specific module pages. As Blackboard has a page for announcements, it is important that you check it regularly.

3. Notice Board
There is a notice board close to the Discipline administrative office in The Arts Millennium Building for general notices. All notices of general relevance posted on this notice board will also be made available through the Blackboard website, to facilitate students who are not on campus. Students are advised to request appointments via e-mail or the course administrator. Students may also e-mail the course coordinator directly.

4. Class Representative
A Class Representative should be elected within the first month of study. The Class Representative will be the main point of contact with the Programme
Director and will be expected to attend and feedback to the monthly Discipline meetings.

Language, Writing and Computer Supports
There are a number of sources of supports for students within the University:

IT Facilities
Registered students at NUI Galway may use the computer network and the Blackboard virtual learning environment. When you register as a student you will be provided with a Username and Password which you will need to use and access the IT services and facilities. If you experience any difficulty with IT facilities, you should contact Information Solutions and Services at: http://www.nuigalway.ie/information-solutions-services/services-for-students/ Bulletins providing information on any issues, such as service disruptions, can be accessed on the ISS homepage and faults can be reported through the ISS ‘service desk’ ticketing system.

Library Facilities
The James Hardiman Library is based on the main campus in NUI Galway. When you are registered as a student of the University you are entitled to use the library facilities. The library is on three floors and for anyone with limited mobility there is a lift that serves all floors. The library’s website can guide you through the range of services available in the library. It is also possible to access most of the library’s services directly through the website. You can log onto the library site through www.nuigalway.ie or through Blackboard. The Library webpage includes links to pages such as ‘using the library’, ‘library catalogue’ and ‘off campus access’ and will guide you through using the resources of the library.

You will use your student ID card to borrow books from the library. To use the library resources electronically, you need to activate your campus account.

The Academic Writing Centre
The Academic Writing Centre (http://library.nuigalway.ie/awc) is located within the James Hardiman Library and offers free workshops and one-to-one supports to students with a focus on their writing skills. The Academic Writing Centre is open during the Semester and operates as a drop-in facility although sessions can be pre-booked.

A full range of services available through the James Hardiman Library can be found at http://library.nuigalway.ie/support.

The International Affairs Office
The International Affairs Office (http://www.nuigalway.ie/international/) provides free writing support classes for students whose first language is not English. For more information, please email international@nuigalway.ie
Blackboard Learning Environment

What is Blackboard?
Blackboard is a web-based learning environment. It is a useful way for you to communicate online with staff and other students. You will be able to use Blackboard to read course announcements and access some of your lecture notes.

Blackboard allows lecturers/tutors to upload lecture notes, reading lists, assessment information, and other course-related material to their Blackboard site so that students may access them. It also contains functions that enable students and teachers to interact via class announcements, e-mail, and discussion boards.

Students can log into the Blackboard system (http://blackboard.nuigalway.ie) using their standard student id and password (i.e. the same credentials as used to log into the PC Suites). Queries can be directed to Information Services and Solutions (ISS) Service Desk at 091 495777 or servicedesk@nuigalway.ie

Format for References
All assertions, pieces of evidence, and comments from others must be referenced. This should be done in standard academic format. The guidelines below are based on those of the American Psychological Society, and should be adhered to at all times when submitting written pieces of work, especially for assessment. For example, the way you should reference work in your essay text is as follows:

According to Jones (1993) the level of carbon dioxide in the...

The level of carbon dioxide in the surrounding field was elevated (Jones, 1993), while three or more authors are referred to as Jones et al., (1993).

All references used in the text must be included in the bibliography or reference section. Any omissions are a serious breach of acceptable practice. References should be presented in alphabetical order according to the surname of the first author and the second and subsequent lines of any reference should be indented.

Journal Articles

Books
Book Chapter

Newspaper Article

Other common forms for references are unpublished reports and personal communications

Use of a Secondary Source
Use of a secondary source (e.g. where you have obtained an account of a study from a textbook) should be made clear in both the text and the reference list. It is very important to correctly reference your sources.

For example, in text;
Naidoo and Wills (1994) cites Herzlich's (1973) study of the health beliefs of a group of middle-class Parisians and Normans...
or
The study of lay health beliefs by Herzlich (1973), as described by Naidoo and Wills (1994), presents an interesting picture of ....

In your reference list secondary references should be as follows:

Citing Documents Published on the Internet.
Increasing numbers of a variety of documents are available from the Internet. This source of documents should be acknowledged just as print material should be. A complication to the citation of internet sources is the wide variation in quality of sites available and the accuracy of information provided. Therefore, assessment of the site is necessary before it is referred to in academic work. Generally, peer reviewed journals published on the web and reports from organisations such as the World Health Organisation and Government publications are acceptable. The citation system that follows is taken from the American Psychological Association and is used extensively.
In the text, as with printed articles and reports the name of the author and year should be given (see previous page).

If a document is known to be available in ordinary printed form, then only its print form need be cited in a reference list. The Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association recommends adding ‘[Electronic version]’ after giving a journal paper title referenced in standard print form but viewed in its electronic form. This is because versions may differ in some ways (e.g. there may be additional data in the electronic version).

Where an internet citation must be given, the principle is that enough information should be provided for retrieval of the source. The minimum information needed is:
- document title or description;
- website address (of the specific document rather than a home or menu page);
- and date of retrieval.

The author or originator of a document and the date of publication or update may also be given.

Line breaks can be a problem, especially as the hyphen is a functional character in internet addresses. If an address needs to be broken, avoid breaking directly before or after a full point or hyphen. If possible, break either side of a forward slash or underscore.

avoid:     preferred:
www.bps.org     www.bps.org.uk/sub-syst/
.uk/sub-syst/subsystems_div1.cfm  subsytems_div1.cfm

Further examples are as follows:

a. Online journal article (available also in print)

b. Internet-only journal article

c. Non-periodical document
Note: Where no publication date is given, use n.d. instead of the year.

A selection of online resources for students on writing, referencing, and avoiding plagiarism can be found at http://www.nuigalway.ie/wrap

Code of Conduct for Students

Please note that the University has a code of conduct for students, which students are bound to read and abide by. Any student who enrolls for any course in the University in doing so accepts the objectives of the University and is giving a commitment, as a responsible individual and as a member of the University community, to behave in an appropriate manner. The primary objectives of the University are the dissemination and advancement of knowledge and understanding through teaching, research, study and rational discussion.

The Student Code of Conduct offers guidelines as to the norms of behaviour that accord with the obligations of students, but where more specific requirements are in place, they are available on the University’s web site here: www.nuigalway.ie/codeofconduct/. It should be noted that students of the University cannot claim any privileged position in regard to the general law of the land. Breaches of this Code and of any University regulations make students liable to the imposition of sanctions.

Appendix A: Code of Practice for Dealing with Plagiarism

1.0 Purpose
To set out the code of practice for dealing with issues of student plagiarism.

2.0 Description
Plagiarism is the act of copying, including or directly quoting from the work of another without adequate acknowledgement, in order to obtain benefit, credit or gain. Plagiarism can apply to many materials, such as words, ideas, images, information, data, approaches or methods. Sources of plagiarism can include books, journals, reports, websites, essay mills, another student, or another person.

Self-plagiarism, or auto-plagiarism, is where a student re-uses work previously submitted to another course within the University or in another Institution.

All work submitted by students for assessment, for publication or for (public) presentation, is accepted on the understanding that it is their own work and contains their own original contribution, except where explicitly referenced using the accepted norms and formats of the appropriate academic discipline.

Plagiarism can arise through poor academic practice or ignorance of accepted norms of the academic discipline. Schools should ensure that resources and education around good academic practice is available to students at all levels.

The Plagiarism Penalty Grid (included in this document) will be made available to all students.

Cases in which students facilitate others to copy their work shall also be subject to the procedures outlined here.

2.1 Procedures
Each School will appoint at least one plagiarism advisor, who is normally a member of academic staff. These advisors are Designated Authorities, as described in the Student Code of Conduct, and have responsibility and authority for dealing with suspected and reported cases of plagiarism.

A list of the current plagiarism advisors will be maintained and made available to all academic staff of the University.

A member of teaching staff who suspects plagiarism is welcome to speak with an appropriate plagiarism advisor, in confidence, about the case. At this point, the staff member is free not to continue with a formal report.
If a staff member decides to formally report a suspected case of plagiarism, a short report shall be prepared including a (marked-up) copy of the student work, along with any evidence for suspecting plagiarism. This report should be forwarded to the plagiarism advisor.

The plagiarism advisor shall conduct an initial investigation of the alleged plagiarism, to determine if there is a case to be made. If the advisor concludes that there is no case of plagiarism, the reporting member of staff will be notified, with a clear statement of the reasons for the decision.

If the plagiarism advisor decides that the case is one of plagiarism, he/she will make an initial assessment of the case using the penalty grid (step 1).

If the points, according to the penalty grid, are in the lower two bands (up to 379) the advisor may conduct an informal interview with the student to discuss the suspected case. If the advisor is satisfied that the case exists, an appropriate penalty will be selected from the grid (step 2).

If the points, according to the penalty grid, are more than 524, the advisor should refer the case to the discipline committee, in accordance with the Student Code of Conduct.

In all other cases (points in the bands 380-524), the student will be invited to attend an interview with the plagiarism adviser and an additional member of staff. The invitation may be by email or letter, and will include an explanation of the purpose of the meeting, including a copy of the marked-up piece of work. The student may be accompanied at the interview by a “friend”.

The additional member of staff may be another plagiarism advisor, the member of staff who reported the case, or another senior member of staff from the School.

Where a student does not engage with the process, by not responding or by refusing to attend an interview, the case will be referred to the discipline committee.

At the interview, the student will be given a clear explanation of what has been alleged, shown a copy of his/her work, given the opportunity to justify the work and be invited to admit or deny responsibility.

Following the interview, if the advisor is satisfied that the case exists, an appropriate penalty will be selected from the grid (step 2). After a penalty has been decided, the advisor will perform a fairness check to consider the impact of the penalty on the student’s overall performance. If the impact is incommensurate with the offence, the advisor may choose to adjust the penalty. In all cases, the student will be notified by the advisor, in writing, of the decision and any penalty imposed.
The plagiarism advisor will write a report, recording the decision and any penalty, which should be lodged centrally. This report is confidential and will not reflect upon the student’s record. It will be used to determine if a second or subsequent offence has occurred, and for statistical information only.

It may be appropriate for incidents of plagiarism to be made known to relevant academic and support staff where this is required for the proper administration of academic programmes and academic decision making. Such sharing of information with appropriate staff does not breach confidentiality.
