Notes for Contributors

Ecopolitics Online will publish a collection of papers from an international pool of environmental academics and researchers on a twice yearly basis. Peer reviewed with contributions from a diverse range of perspectives, Ecopolitics Online will address environmental issues with a multidisciplinary approach which incorporates politics, sociology, geography, globalisation, social movements, ecotopias, development, economics, philosophy, ecology, law and science.

Submissions must be original and not currently under consideration for publication elsewhere. We aim to reach a decision on publication within three months of receipt of the submission. Ecopolitics Online is affiliated with the Sustainability Research Network and the Environmental Change Institute, NUIG.

Word Limit: Manuscripts around 8,000 words in length.

Format: Borders of 1 inch all round. Font Times Roman 12pt. Double spaced.

Anonymous Manuscript: To facilitate the refereeing process, please ensure that your paper is anonymous by including your name, contact details on a separate sheet. All contact details should also be given separately.

Abstract. A summary of around 150 words with a list of key words should be provided.

Footnotes should be included at the end of the article. These should be numbered consecutively through the text, and presented on a separate sheet of paper, typed with double spacing.

Bibliographic citations can appear in text or notes. These should include the author's last name and the title or year of publication, and may include a page reference: (Leonard 2006 12). A separate list of references should be provided, in alphabetical order. Please do not abbreviate journal titles.

Copyright: The editors reserve the right to make editorial changes. Contributors are expected to assign copyright to the publisher; though they remain free to use material in subsequent publications provided Ecopolitics Online is acknowledged as the original place of publication.

Submission of papers: Contributors should submit papers by email, as a Microsoft Word document. Contributions should be sent to
