

Do you know a brilliant science communicator?

The British Science Association Award Lectures are a rare opportunity to honour five professional scientists or engineers in the early stages of their career, who show outstanding skills in communicating to a non-specialist audience.

Winners will be invited to give a one hour presentation at the British Science Festival, Surrey at the University of Surrey between 5 and 10 September 2009.

For more information about the Award Lecture scheme and how to nominate, go to:

www.britishtscienceassociation.org/awardlectures
or email festival@britishscienceassociation.org

Nominations for the 2009 Award Lectures must be received by 27 February 2009.
