Core Modules

Semester 1

Global Business and International HRM

This module explores the response of hospitality businesses to global and economic pressures such as macro-forces in the economy, mergers and acquisitions, marketing challenges, developing product offerings and differentiation. It also encourages students to examine how HRM operates in a business setting in order to maintain an effective business with motivated and innovative staff.

Information Technology for Hospitality

The objective of this module is to equip hospitality business leaders with Information Technology knowledge, awareness, and skills to inform their business decisions and practices. There are three main strands in this module:

- Information Technology for Hospitality Marketing which examines website considerations, conversion rates, social media, social video, digital advertising, branded mobile apps, online destination marketing, online hospitality services, and OTAs.
- Information Technology for Hospitality Operations which explores management information systems (global and in-house), data warehousing, data analytics, IT system security, payments (electronic and online), in-house mobile apps, and devices (wireless and biometric).
- Teaching of research-based strategies and practical skills which students can then use to deliver engaging business presentations.

Performance and Revenue Management

The objective of this module is to develop the skills necessary to appraise financial and non-financial performance in a hospitality organisation, along with the ability to devise revenue management strategies to improve an organisation's performance. The module will look at a number of key areas: the performance information needs of different users, industry wide and organisation specific key performance indicators, interpretation of business accounts, application of performance management models and cost reduction strategies. The area of revenue management will be approached from the viewpoint of the revenue manager who needs to manage this complex activity with the understanding of a systems approach.

Business Analytics Fundamentals

Business Analytics is the process by which businesses use statistical methods and technologies for analysing historical data to gain new insight and improve strategic decision-making. This module introduces students to a range of business-analytic concepts, methodologies, techniques, and practices typically employed in a range of business contexts that turns data into information.

Semester 3

In the final semester, students have the opportunity to tailor their own education experience to suit their interests, skillset and career ambitions. Students will have the option of completing a Research Thesis or Internship. The topic of research or the type of internship secured will be guided by the students area of focus. Students who are completing the MSc in Business and Hospitality will have a third option which will be to complete a Summer School and a Business Consultancy Project.

Semester 2

Hotel Asset Management

Hotel Asset Management will provide the framework, knowledge and tools to manage hotel assets strategically. The module will enable students to develop analytical capabilities to enable them to evaluate opportunities and make decisions related to the management of hotel assets. Also assessed will be management contracts between owners and operators, and the complexities involved in handling multiple stakeholders in Hotel Asset Management contracts.

Intercultural Communication for Business

This module will enable students to recognise, understand and reflect on issues related to intercultural communication in global business settings. It comprises three core areas of study: intercultural communication and cross-cultural management, human resources management in a global context, and global leadership. The objective of this module is to enable students to recognise and understand the importance of culture and its impact on business communication and management across cultures while reflecting on the need to increase their own level of intercultural sensitivity and competence, in order to succeed as managers of global teams. The manner in which cultural differences impact on communication and human resources practices and policies will be discussed and evaluated. Following this, the needs and challenges of becoming a successful global leader will be analysed by considering different cultural settings and work scenarios, as well as the students' own culture.

Project Management

The objective of this module is to provide an opportunity to apply the process of project management to a specific hospitality business project. Topics covered include project definition, planning, execution, basic feasibility models, management, control, and implementation. This will involve the application of a formalised and structured project management process and the development of proposals demonstrating appreciation of the practical and consumer-based contexts of the organisation.

Strategy and Innovation for Business

The objective of this module is to expose the students to key strategic management frameworks, models, and theories that they can then adapt and apply to the world of business in order to foster innovation. A key task for the students is to understand how strategy is crafted in response to the changing business environment. Students are expected to play an active role in the learning process by engaging with academic literature to further their knowledge of strategy and to improve their organisational awareness. The overall aim of this module is to challenge the students to think differently.

Choosing the right Postgraduate Programme for you

MSc in Business & Hospitality

The MSc in Business & Hospitality is designed for those with hospitality/business qualifications or experience who wish to develop their knowledge of hospitality systems, trends and business applications to an advanced level. Stefan Maidment - UG 2019 PG 2021

This college provided me with a fantastic opportunity to grow both personally and professionally in the field of hospitality.

Each module was carefully designed and expertly delivered by the faculty, offering profound insights into the subject matter. Their superb approach to delivering each module equipped me with the skills and knowledge required to excel in the hospitality industry.

The diverse and inclusive environment at the College further enhanced my experience. The student body comprised of individuals from various countries, professions, and age groups, resulting in a truly multicultural learning experience. The open discussions and interactions with my peers fostered an environment where we could learn from each other's unique perspectives and experiences. The impact of this master's degree on my career has been nothing short of remarkable. Currently, I hold the position of Deputy General Manager, and I firmly believe that my time at Shannon College of Hotel Management played a crucial role in my professional development.

Sabina Gurang – Class of 2022

My time in Shannon College of Hotel Management has been a fantastic learning experience and I have gained a lot of new knowledge. I chose Shannon College of Hotel Management because I have wanted to go there since I was in fifth year of secondary school. The College has a great reputation in the industry and I was very interested in the modules they offered such as Revenue and Performance Management and Project Management. I was intrigued by the discussions in class and the examples my lecturers and classmates provided. I have learned a lot from the mixture of different modules provided and the many guest lecturers from the industry. The diverse range of modules meant that the programme catered to all students.

I chose to complete an internship in my third semester. The College helped me get an internship in the area that I had interest in pursuing for my future career.

The Shannon family and lecturers are welcoming, supportive, and friendly. Not only did I have the opportunity to meet and attend lectures from experienced industry experts, but I have also made some great friends from different backgrounds.

Dr Sean T. Ruane, Lecturer in Management, Strategy, Facilities and Tourism

Are you interested in working in a dynamic and exciting career in hospitality management? Do you enjoy working with other people and have great interpersonal skills? Do you enjoy solving problems and using creative thinking to find new approaches to old problems? Then choosing a postgraduate programme at Shannon College of Hotel Management could be right for you. The postgraduate programmes are designed for students who want to know how to keep hospitality companies and organisations competitive through innovation, strategic thinking and advanced people management.

In an era of increased globalisation and uncertainty, hospitality companies that don't remain relevant through the creation of new products and services, will find it hard to compete.

The postgraduate programmes at Shannon College meets this challenge, teaching students how they can create competitive advantage for any sized business by implementing strategic changes and helping the company to innovate.
